

Digitizing Early Farming Cultures (DEFC)

Review Questions:

1. Have the project aims laid down in the proposal been achieved?

Yes. It was by the way very easy to link the proposal to the project results. It all looks very nice and very extensive.

2. Was data made available according to international standards?

Yes. There are great options for data retrieval. The tab 'Data Retrieval' in the menu may look a bit technical, however it is possible to get the data to your own platform. Some additional help on this issue would be appreciated.

3. Have jury expectations for this project been met?

Yes. The 'Data Exploration' encompasses a lot, so much that I quickly got lost in the beginning - it was not clear to me, for example, what the difference was between 'sites' and 'areas'. But through the DEFC Thesaurus I quickly found a clear answer to that question, so all in all it is certainly very user-friendly and comprehensive in a very good way.

The map makes everything clear and the 3D presentations of the objects makes it particularly attractive to examine the findings per area. This project is a well designed integration of isolated resources into an interlinked information system which can connect into far reaching infrastructures.